THIS Catalogue has been compiled by Mr. J. F. Blumhardt, formerly of the Bengal Uncovenanted Civil Service, in continuation of the series of Catalogues of books in North Indian vernacular languages in the British Museum Library, upon which Mr. Blumhardt has now been engaged for several years. It is believed to be the first Library Catalogue ever made of Marathi and Gujarati books. The principles on which it has been drawn up are fully explained in the Preface.

PREFACE.

The present Catalogue has been prepared on the same plan as that adopted in the compiler's "Catalogue of Bengali Printed Books." The same principles of orthography have been adhered to, i.e. pure Sanskrit words ('tatsamas') are spelt according to the system of transliteration generally adopted in the preparation of Oriental Catalogues for the Library of the British Museum, whilst forms of Sanskrit words, modified on Prakrit principles ('tadbhavas'), are expressed as they are written and pronounced, but still subject to a definite and uniform method of transliteration. Analogous principles are applied to words of Persian or Arabic origin.

It is satisfactory to observe that Marathi authors themselves have recognized the necessity of adopting a systematic method of spelling their names. Where an English title-page is given, the author has generally followed the regular Sanskrit form of spelling, except perhaps in the omission of a final unexpressed inherent 'a.'

Marathi names are composed generally of the personal name, followed by the father's name, and by a name denoting lineage, profession, place of residence or of birth, which is generally regarded in the light of an English surname. Wherever the full name has not been given by the author, it has been supplied if possible. Gujarati authors are so extremely lax and irregular in spelling their names, even in the native character, that to adopt their own forms would inevitably result in endless confusion, and it is therefore necessary to follow a systematic and fixed principle of spelling for cataloguing purposes.*

The same difficulty, though in a lesser degree, has presented itself in the case of Parsi names. A systematic orthography has been adopted, by which an attempt is made to represent, as far as possible, the original Pehlevi forms, but without unduly interfering with the established usage of the Parsis of Gujarat. Thus, for instance, both "Minuchehrjī" and "Mancherjī," "Peshotan" and "Pestanjī," are to be found amongst the names of Parsi authors in the Catalogue, in accordance with the forms adopted by the men themselves.

For the spelling of Indian geographical names, the system adopted in the second edition of Hunter's "Gazetteer" has been followed.

J. F. BLUMHARDT.
